Dear Educator,

We appreciate the efforts you put forth in searching out quality experiences for the students in your life. We understand this effort can amass mounds of information that stops at a critical point of understanding: what is the purpose of this outfit? What is the direction of this company I'm considering for my students?

We acutely understand those questions for they're the same questions we're faced with when putting together our summer camp program, for our private guests, visiting camps and visiting educational facilities albeit schools, both public and private as well as youth organizations such as the Boy- or Girl- Scouts, home-schoolers and teams. For us, it's critical to work with people who 'buy-in' to our program, to our desire to produce the best camp for everyone that visits. Since we've done this 'shopping' for quality, you can relax on this part of your mission.

As the owner of AWA, I grew up across the street from our campground, began rafting at 11-years of age and professionally guiding at 14. I LOVED the river when I was growing up. I enjoyed the actual event of rafting but there is so much more to be found: friends, guides from around the globe, being outside, good food in a camping environment, campfires, wild animals and the freedom of caring for myself. As life moved on, I moved away from rafting and eventually created my own family. When my own daughter reached 11-years of age I began longing for the river and the ability to share that with her. I purchased AWA, have taken it from a strict rafting company into a wonderful summer camp. Here are some main features that make us the place to bring your school, your students.
